Warm Your Heart in North Dakota

The University of North Dakota, College of Nursing welcomes your application. Positions are available for tenure track assistant, associate or full professor in either adult, geriatric, psychiatric/mental health, or the public health curricula. The ideal candidate brings a funded program of research, an earned doctorate, and certification in an advanced nursing specialty.

Clinical part time faculty positions are also available for nurses holding a master’s degree in nursing. Graduate teaching assistantships with a tuition waiver are available for BSN prepared nurses enrolled in the master's program, or for master's degree prepared nurses enrolled in the PhD program at the College of Nursing.

College of Nursing Highlights:

- Nursing at UND offers a full range of programs from AD-BS [on-line], AD-MS [on-line], BSN, MS, and PhD including master’s options of Family Nurse Practitioner, Psych/Mental Health Nursing, Nurse Educator [on-line], Nurse Anesthesia, and Geriatric Nursing.
- Pass rates of 100% on national specialty certifying exams.
- A new undergraduate curriculum includes solid grounding in pathophysiology, population-based health promotion, positive images of aging, and an inter-professional collaboration.
- The College offers a vibrant environment for research in vulnerable, rural populations, child health, diversity, cancer prevention and gerontology within a research-intensive university.
- The first federally-funded nursing research building in the US will be completed in 2008 and will be the home of the Northern Plains Behavioral Center. If behavioral determinants of health are your practice and/or passion, you belong here.

University Community:

- UND is a full service university with a unique combination of medicine, law, nursing, and aerospace sciences plus strong liberal arts offerings.
- UND is the premier educator of American Indian students in the country, with Nursing leading the effort by offering the most successful Recruitment and Retention of American Indians into Nursing (RAIN) program in the nation, which includes the Indian Health Scholarship.

What Grand Forks has to offer:

- Discover Grand Forks, North Dakota in a featured article in the New York Times Travel section, 2/10/06.
- Cold weather is secondary when you realize the cultural opportunities in music, dance, theater and art here.
- Quality of life for families and singles is outstanding in North Dakota, considering minimal pollution, warm and friendly people, great schools and the highest levels of social capital in the country.
- People participate in the life of their community and you can “get things done.”
- Recreation opportunities within two hours away include Winnipeg, Manitoba, the Minnesota forests and lakes, great camping, hunting and fishing, and the great American flyway feasting at your outdoor bird feeder.
- Plus, where else can you find all of this … and a parking place!

Come try a taste of the good life. Come to warm-hearted North Dakota.

Submit letter of intent with curriculum vita, or resume, and names of three references to:

Chandice Covington, PhD, RN, FAAN
Dean, College of Nursing, University of North Dakota
430 Oxford St Mailstop 9025, Grand Forks, North Dakota 58202-9025
Call: 701.777.4555 or email: chandicecovington@mail.und.edu

University of North Dakota is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer